The teapot KEIZU rounds off our tableware collection. Inspired by traditional Asian craftsmanship and adapted to the needs of today, the small teapot delights equally with its haptics and aesthetics. The reduced design and elegant matte-black color are sure to make an impression.

The design of the KEIZU teapot was derived from “Kyusu” – so-called traditional Japanese teapots, which are usually made of high-quality fired volcanic clay. The term “Kyusu” simply means “teapot” but is often used colloquially for teapots with a handle on the side.

Originally from ancient China, they have found their way into Japanese culture over the centuries and are mainly used to prepare Japanese green tea.

The stoneware ELEPHANT FEET originates from our collaboration with an artist who has been researching celadon colors and their characteristics for over 20 years. The soft matte and delicately shiny hues of the stoneware ELEPHANT FEET appear in all variations from sky blue to off-white, steel blue to earthy green. In addition to the color variations, the irregular shapes of ELEPHANT FEET reflect the workshop process of glaze testing. Collaborating with the artist, we evolved the shapes of the small, hand-potted test forms and transferred them to a series of cups, plates and bowls. The purposeful amorphous-organic randomness of this interplay of forms contributes to the lively character of ELEPHANT FEET.

As part of our mission to create an environment for everyone where relaxation and tranquility can reign, we created the Phone Home – a home for your phone and your distractions. The Phone Home is not just a place to put your phone at the end of a hectic day or week. It is an act of awareness and mindfulness: distancing ourselves from the outside world, sending the phone to its own place so that we can finally come home as well – to ourselves.

Put the phone screen downwards to not get distracted by flashing notifications and lights. Alternatively you can put on “sleep mode” before placing it in its home.

A hidden opening on the back connects the charging cable to the phone – allowing human and phone to (re)charge at the same time.

The small organizational aids TRAYS are made of aromatic olive wood. Due to the wood's structure, their grain resembles fine marble and pleases the eye with its naturalness. TRAYS find their place in high-quality gastronomy, for nobly presenting and serving drinks and small treats. They are a perfect storage aid or design object in office or living spaces. TRAYS are antibacterial due to the lignin and tannin contained in olive wood. This makes cleaning and maintenance very easy. Discoloration and moisture inclusions can be avoided with a few simple steps – even after years of use. We only use wood from aged trees that no longer bear fruit. This way, we can ensure that there is no loss of yield in the production region in Turkey. We also produce with a long drying time, ensuring the particularly high quality of our MAOMI cutting boards.
