STONE^{1/2}

COLLECTION

"Minerals are agents of time, all of them leave their mark and bring rain, wind, and sediments to the present with their beautiful rough textures and colors that emerge from the earth."

The image features two ancient stone vessels against a black background. On the left is a tall, cylindrical vessel with a series of raised, rounded bumps around its circumference. In the foreground on the right is a wider, shallower bowl-like vessel, also featuring similar raised bumps. Both vessels have a weathered, porous texture.

"The shapes of ancient stones
inspire us to craft
textures that are
both unique and
unmistakably
distinctive."
