ORIGIN OF THE KNIFE

From prehistory to the consolidation of Albacete as a European benchmark in knife making, the place where Arcos was founded in 1734.

ORIGIN OF THE KNIFE

The knife has accompanied humankind throughout its evolution. From the first carved stone tools in prehistory 2.5 million years ago, through the smelting of metals around 3000 BC, to becoming an everyday object in 700 BC.

ORIGIN OF THE KNIFE

In Albacete, the cutlery tradition dates back to the 15th century with the emergence of the first cutlers' guilds. It reached its peak in the 17th century, considered the "Golden Age" of Albacete cutlery, establishing itself as a European benchmark.

ORIGIN OF THE KNIFE

Since 1734, the Arcos family has been key to this evolution, transforming a craft into an internationally renowned industry that maintains a heritage and respect for the craft that spans more than six centuries.

Arcos, first references.

They date back to the 18th century and demonstrate the evolution of Arcos' design, craftsmanship, and way of doing things since its beginnings.

Some of these valuable examples are preserved and displayed in institutions such as the National Archaeological Museum in Madrid, the Albacete Museum, and the Albacete Municipal Cutlery Museum.

WE TRANSFORM THESE RAW MATERIALS

Arcos has been part of this community for several centuries, in every home, every kitchen, every meal.

Cutting is much more than an action: it's the essence of our brand. Cutting involves transforming, preparing, and paving the way for what we value most: sharing. Inspired by Mediterranean culture, we understand cooking as a collective act, where food is not just processed or cooked, but enjoyed together.

THE BAZAAR®
BY JOSÉ ANDRÉS

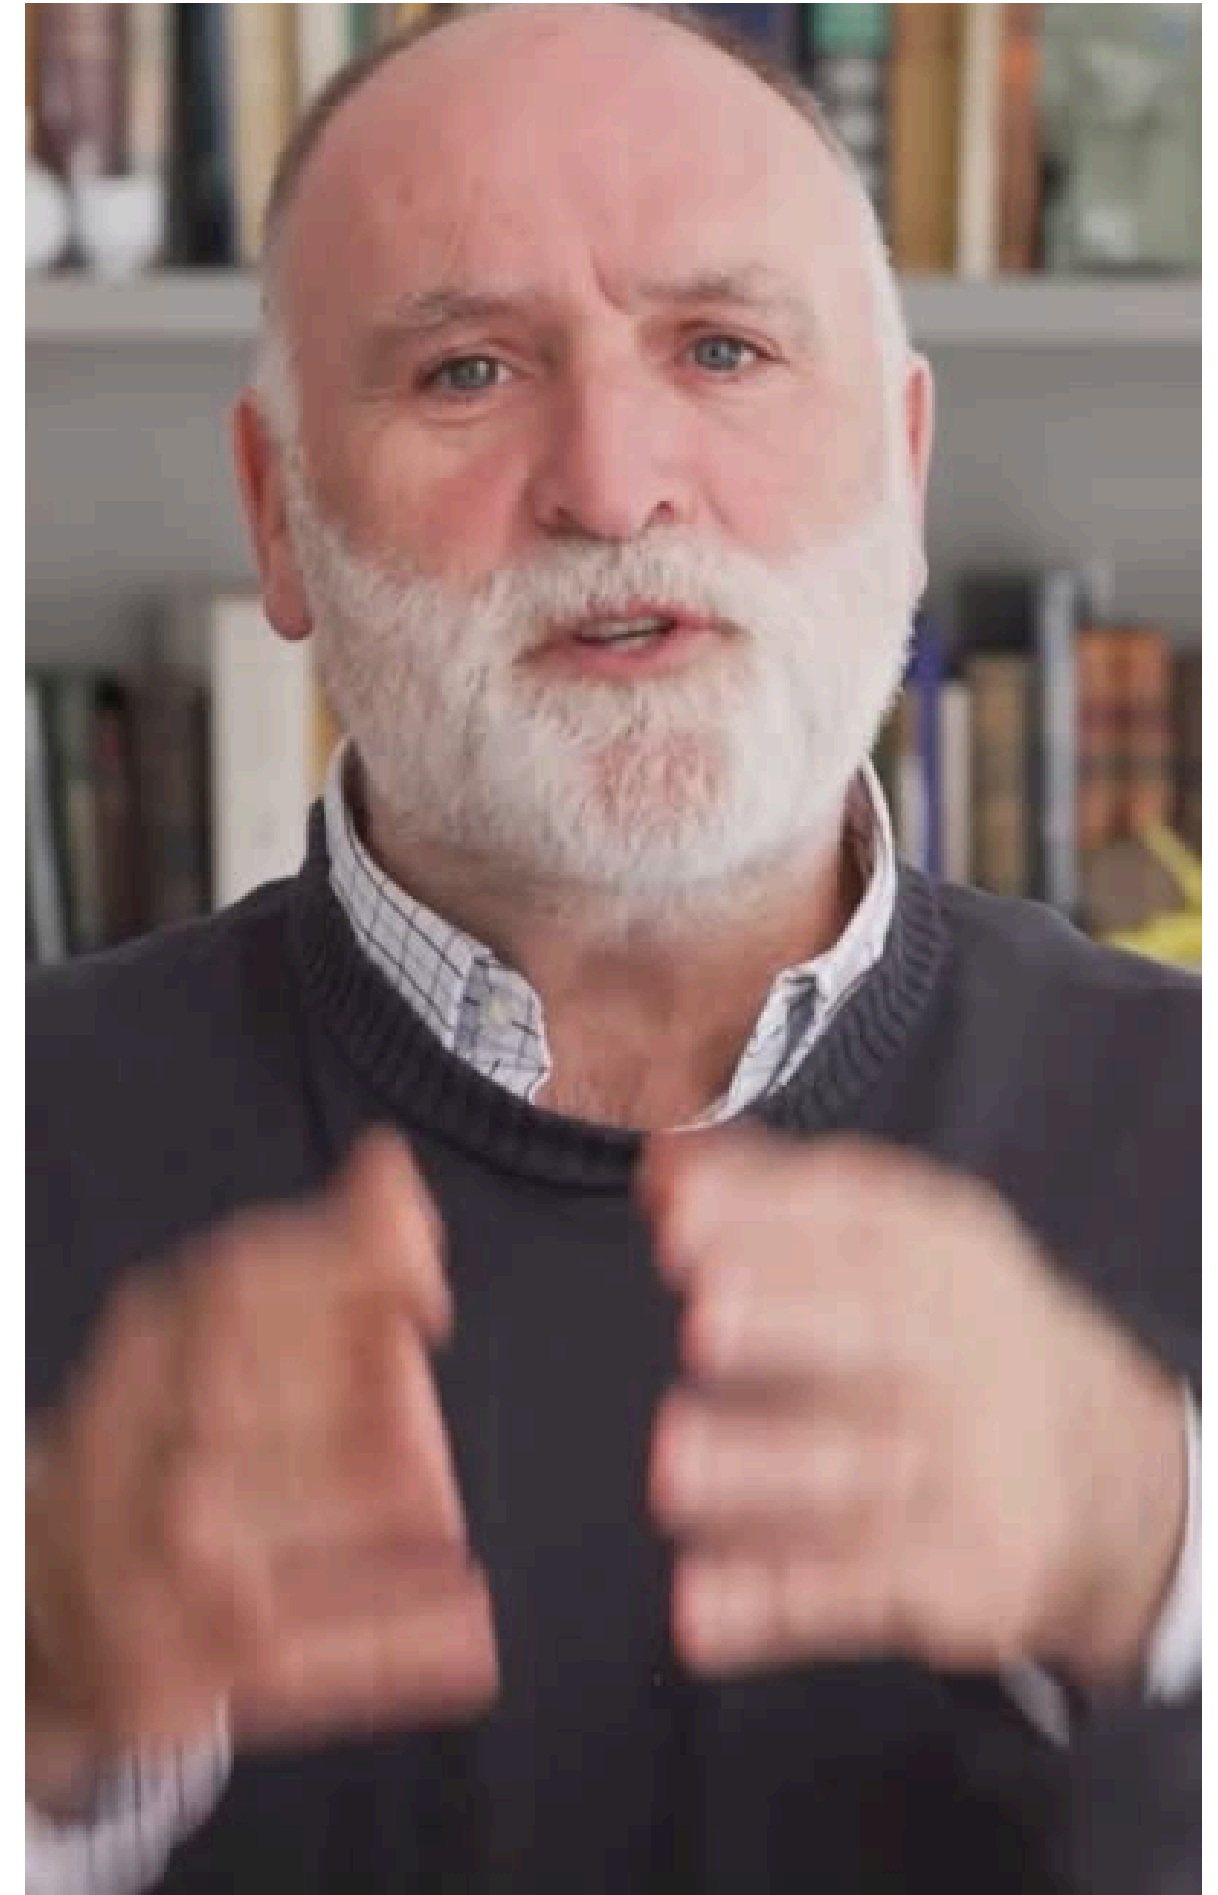

OSBORNE
1772

José Andrés, ambassador of Spanish cuisine and Iberian ham in the USA, joins forces with Arcos.

Together with chef José Andrés, we've launched a new collection of essential knives inspired by Spanish culinary tradition. United by the Made in Spain seal and the philosophy of cutting is sharing.

Thanks to this alliance, and with the help of Carlos Sánchez, R&D at José Andrés Group and CEO of Los Finos, we developed a new ham knife, which Sánchez used for the first time at the prestigious 2025 Oscars.

We work to reflect a culture of Spanish craftsmanship, projecting its value to the world.
