GALEA

This glass, with its generous curves and subtle finesse, seems to have emerged directly from a dream inspired by Art Nouveau.

Its silhouette, fluid and airy, recalls the wrought-iron scrolls of Hector Guimard, the architectural arabesques of Charles Sauvage, and the fragility of Émile Gallé's glass creations. It isn't just a simple container; it's a work of art that pays tribute to an era where beauty was intimately intertwined with function.

MYLLA

A timeless line and a structure of daring finesse: this glass is a tribute to the great names of

Metal Architecture.

It captures the spirit of the monumental works of Eiffel, the delicacy of the glass structures by Jourdain and Girault, and the clarity of Baert's constructions. Each curve and each facet is designed to capture the light, transforming the glass into an object that is both powerful and airy.
