- ANSUL High Pressure Carbon Dioxide Systems (Co<sub>2</sub>)

Carbon dioxide suppresses fire without leaving behind any residues after discharge thus avoiding damage to sensitive equipment. It can be used for Class A, B and C fire With no agent clean up. Carbon Dioxide systems can protect printing presses, vaults, open pits, dip tanks, spray booths, ovens, engine rooms, coating machines, process equipment, hoods and ducts, flammable gas or liquid storage areas, and generators. Its recommend to use Carbon Dioxide for non-occupied hazards.

- Ansul Foam System

Foam works in different ways depending on the type of fire. Fire are split into classes: A for ordinary combustibles (wood, paper, etc), B for flammable liquids (gas, oil, etc), C for energized materials (electrically supplied machines), and D for combustible metals (magnesium, titanium, etc). Foam is generally only used on the first two classes, A and B and they use different types of foam and equipment. Class A foam works by soaking into the burning material, breaking down the surface tension and allowing water to penetrate it better, thereby cooling it and inhibiting its access to oxygen. Class B foam works by forming a vapor barrier over the flammable liquid prohibiting the vapors from the fuel to ignite

- Ansul Kitchen Hood System R102

ANSUL® special hazard fire protection products include fire extinguishers, hand held units, pre-engineered restaurant, vehicle, fire detection /suppression systems and a complete range of dry chemical, foam, and gaseous extinguishing agents.
