

Fabrics for autumn and winter. Luxury within your reach.

WALT Clay, Spice, Oasis

There is no better season to be amazed with fabrics and all their wonderful properties than autumn and winter. This is the time when we enjoy their exceptional drapability and snuggliness. We love how their texture responds to our touch.

During this time of the year we have numerous occasions to add a touch of warmth in interior spaces and create cosy intimacy in our homes with the use of fabrics. What we seek in autumn-winter fabrics is quality, which we subconsciously appreciate and which provides us with the sense of security and protection against cold.

Thus our love towards soft, fluffy or harsh but warm woollen flannel, our delight at the lightness of cashmere or mohair, and appreciation of exceptionally malleable felt. Long afternoons and evenings spent indoors are conducive to admiring picturesque velvets and velvets. Their shiny surfaces on furniture and textile decorations, and their colours that change in the light certainly fascinate and catch the eye.

The quality of comfort

LINCOLN Onyx, Taupe

We seek comfort in the soothing warmth of woollen fabrics. We like to caress them and enjoy it when they touch our skin. The soft pleasure of snuggling into them reminds us of the best moments spent in tranquil interiors.

Velvet. Seductive softness

Velvet fabrics have always carried connotations of elegance and luxury. Their exquisite gloss will brighten any room, whereas the easiness of draping them into fancy draperies will add a touch of extravagance to interior spaces.

The appeal of the home scenery

Velvets are royal fabrics with a rich history. Just like theatre drapes, velvet draperies create the indoor atmosphere. When decorating windows or padding furniture with velvets, we endow interiors with a new quality. Such fabrics will make any, even the most modest four walls look attractive and decorative like a mysterious still life.

Fabrics saturated with colour bring it in interior spaces in the form of intense, large blotches, thus determining the general tone of the room. We may choose between calming, sweet, tantalising pastels and stimulating, saturated and energetic shades.

The light and gloss always enhance the effect of colours. Wools absorb them and always “give back” part of them when touched. Velvets and velvets are the best “carriers” of intense colours and allow us to enjoy their saturated beauty.

Dekoma is an industry leader in high end interior fabrics. We sell our collections of decorative and upholstery fabrics, wallpapers, carpets and upholstery accessories to 50 countries around the world.

As a textile editor, each year we create our own collections in line with current trends. We develop new designs together with manufacturers and designers and test new production technologies. We are environmentally conscious. Therefore, we are seeking to find new avenues for development, raw materials and sustainable solutions. Our years of experience allow us to meet diverse needs and exacting demands when implementing large contractual projects. We work with universities and research centres, acquire and share knowledge and support education and culture.

We provide our customers with upholstery and decorative fabrics, trimmings, carpets, wallpapers, leather, threads, nails and buttons. We are the only distributor of the Alcantara, Agena, Koninck', Penelope Oggi, Abraham Moon & Sons, Cotting and Ligne Pure brands in Central and Eastern Europe.
