Thinking on sustainability means to care about resources that need to be kept for future generations...

What can be more sustainable than alpaca fiber?

Peruvian alpaca has been in our territory for more than 5000 years and still is, living with our Andean population at more than 5000 meters of altitude.

Together with vicugna , llama and guanaco it belongs to the Southamerican camelids family.

4 million alpacas live in Peru,
80% of the world´s population.

Alpaca is one of the world's finest hairs, soft and warm at the same time, perfect for garments and accesories.

It comes in more than 20 natural tones and is also dyed under safe certifications to go along with seasonal FW and SS trend colors.

An alpaca garment is made to last...
Try it...
Feel it...
You will never leave it...
