

Red Hot News from Carisa Radiators

With 16 new products to launch at ISH 2023 in Frankfurt, Carisa Radiators certainly have plenty to talk about at the show this year.

There are new additions in each of the 5 categories of products, all with stunning designs and available a selection of sizes and colours to suit all room settings.

The cheeky design of the Glasgow radiator from the Ultraslim Collection is a real eye-catcher, showing the silhouette of a little black dress. Great for interior designs where brave choices can be made. These ultraslim steel panel radiators are only 7mm thick, but still perform beyond expectation whilst delivering amazing designs for contemporary homes.

Carisa are also showing the stainless steel Alveole, where the honeycomb design has been derived from nature and has a new video to launch it to showrooms and boutique retailers. It is part of the newly named Luxury Collection and is available in a range of colours and finishes with a guarantee of up to 20 years.

Barry Custy, General Manager of Carisa UK says: “We’re so looking forward to ISH 2023. We’ve spent the last year consolidating the Carisa business in the UK by moving to larger premises with a bigger warehouse and now, with a new Carisa Design Book and so many new products, we’re ready to remind the industry what Carisa Radiators is all about. “

Notes to Editors:

CARISA is a UK brand of designer radiators, towel warmers and heating products that use unique design and cutting-edge technology to drive their product development and manufacturing.

The CARISA brand is recognised internationally, and each product is created by our experienced research and development team who have led the heating market for over 45 years. All CARISA products are designed, manufactured and built by our own people, in our own factories in Istanbul.

Our heating collections include aluminium, steel, stainless steel, and electric products in a full range of sizes and colours.

In the UK, our new premises in Manchester include an extensive warehouse, offices and attractive showroom and our products are distributed to showrooms and retailers nationwide.

Working internationally with a broad range of architects and interior designers, CARISA has established loyal specification partnerships on a number of large projects.

Our products adorn homes, hotels and other commercial and architectural projects around the world.
