Flame caught in eternity

This is our story. The story of a flame caught in eternity. So fragile, yet so mighty in its infinite possibilities of use. We are proud of our over 320-year-long tradition, since we know that without strong foundations we could not produce new and improved products for you, our valued partners, and for your clients.

History tells our tale. Every generation of Stele candle makers has proven to be a trendsetter and a driving force of change. Through our innovations and continuous progress we have not only improved our products, but also developed the user experience of lighting candles. Today, our main philosophy is continuous development while maintaining high quality. We look forward with determination and focus on the sustainable and green operation of our company.

We wish to keep our flame eternal. Our products are burning longer and more brightly, while at the same time we want to keep that warmth in our heart. To always tread our own path with pride, stay a step ahead of competition and remain a reliable partner – these are our commitments which we pursue every day by modernising the production, quality control and continued progress. From masterfully produced handmade candles to advanced solutions in graveyard and decorative candles – all products are distinguished by their excellence refined by traditional values.

If a candle was once used to fight the darkness, today it enlightens the spirit, lights up solemn moments and creates a feeling of home. We have caught the flame in eternity for all of you who cherish special moments in silence.

Our milestones

The start of the candle making business at the Lectar House

Candle making started at the Lectar House in the most romantic way – with a wedding! In November 1701, the heiress of the House, Klara Legat, married the honeybread baker and candle maker Jurij Bitenc.

1993 —

In our effort to offer customers a candle that burns longer, the PAX long-burning candle was developed. The candle casing holds a layer of air thus providing for better conditions for paraffin burning in the case of low ambient temperature.

2000 -

The PAX svečarna Stele d.o.o. company outgrew its modest business premises in the Lectar House, and moved to a new, modern business and production facility in Bakovnik.

1951

Jože Plečnik, the famous Slovenian architect, whose designs are known all over the world, and a family friend of the Stele family, suggested producing candles decorated with wax moulds of various motifs. The wax castings were formed in wooden models once used to shape dough. Pax Candles Stele first made a candle of this kind under the mentoring of Plečnik in 1951 for the 80th anniversary of the Slovenian author Fran S. Finžgar. The idea was a success, and even today we make candles according to the concept of Plečnik and are proud to be associated with his name.

2010 —

The Moon candle is the first modular candle that comes in four variants. The most popular variant is the one burning 14 days due to its large cartridge of liquid wax.

2017 -

We modernised the production line and thus our production capacities. Our candle makers are joined by the first robot.

The production is expanded with an automated production line for liquid wax cartridges.

As the company grows, storage facilities need to be extended and business premises renovated – the company gets its own laboratory and a spacious meeting room.

2021 —

True to our tradition and values, we bravely face the future. After the renewal of our corporate identity and website, we also established our digital sales channel. Time has taught us that the only constant in life is 'change'. We are convinced that all changes are just new opportunities to grow, which we are successfully realising through constant development and by maintaining the high quality of our products.

plame caught in the eternity of the memory of loved ones

Graveyard candles have always been an important part of the identity of our culture and carry a symbol of light, warmth or flame and memory. A candle as a symbol of light guides the deceased from the light of life through the darkness of death to the afterlife. At the same time it represents a flame of memory burning warm in our hearts, after our beloved one has passed on.

To light a flame in memory of our nearest and dearest is a simple but noble act bringing peace to our life. By lighting a flame, many remember the deceased while contemplating on their own life. Although the flame is often imbued with profound sadness and grief, it helps us feel peaceful and connected to the beloved one who has gone to the other side, and at the same time it makes it easier for us to face the pain associated with the loss.

Our collection of graveyard candles includes wax, oil and battery graveyard candles – traditional products and variants enabling long use by changing the refills or cartridges. Since the very beginning, the company has always endeavoured to provide candles that burn longer and more brightly, while at the same time looking to the future with care for the environment. Our graveyard candles are completely recyclable.

a moment for our nearest and dearest

GRAVEYARD CANDLES

Honour the memory of your beloved ones with the Moon candle distinguished by modern design, simple use and long burning (at least 14 days). It comes in four variants that may be combined in six colours. The upper part is intended for reuse. After the cartridge burns down in the lower part, you simply replace it. Empty cartridges are fully recyclable.

Long-burning candles are distinguished by a high level of usability and a modern design. They are double-walled and thus burn beautifully and for a longer period of time due to the air layer protecting the refill from cold ambient temperatures (up to 6 days). Lighting a candle reminds us that our loved ones live on in our memory.

BATTERY CANDLES

We can pay our respects to our beloved ones who are no longer with us with battery candles that have become increasingly popular recently since their burning time is significantly longer and are easy to maintain. Depending on the battery module, they can burn from 30 to 120 days. Battery candles are characterised by their classical design and glimmering light that imitates the natural burning of the flame.

A candle can also be a beautiful gift bringing joy to the recipient and carrying a memory of you and of the celebration. Our master craftsmen make handmade baptism, communion, confirmation, wedding and jubilee candles to celebrate important milestones in our lives.

In particular, we are proud of handmade Plečnik candles where the tradition of craft and the unique language of art of the renowned Slovenian architect, Jože Plečnik, are interwoven. For many decades, we have produced candles according to the method proposed by the architect. They come in three different colours with various figurative wax casts formed in wooden moulds that were used in the past to shape the honeybread dough.

We also make handmade prayer candles which are an essential element of Christian rituals and sacraments. Prayer candles represent the light of redemption and are embellished with pious motifs.

moment for unique events HANDMADE CANDLES

The stories of the heart deserve a special touch. Candles handmade by our master candle makers make special moments even more unique. The essential element in receiving the sacrament are baptism, communion, confirmation and wedding candles. We preserve the tradition of hand decorated candles, where each and every candle is a unique product and a precious memory of the ceremonial event.
